

Six Sigma and Lean... Meet Pro-Link GLOBAL, Inc

Pro-Link GLOBAL, Inc, the global leader in concierge level corporate visa and immigration services, recently trained every single employee in Six Sigma and Lean Methodology.

Bradenton, FL (PRWEB) October 15, 2009 -- Pro-Link GLOBAL, Inc, the leader in corporate global immigration services, is proud to announce that it is the first Global Visa and Immigration Service provider in the U.S.A to combine the tools and processes of two industry-recognized management methodologies, Lean and Six Sigma thereby creating a powerful vehicle for improving quality, efficiency and speed within our organization.

The point of Six Sigma Implementation in a company, put simply, is to reduce costs, while offering a better service. During tough economic times, people are more careful with their available monies; they look for better products and shop around for the best deal.

" If your service is optimized to the point where it is the best on the market, at the lowest price, you will undoubtedly be successful, even in times of economic downturn", said Ann Merritt, Client Services Manager and Green Belt Six Sigma holder.

Our unique, disciplined approach involves analyzing our own business processes and identifying ways to eliminate both errors and unnecessary steps. From streamlining paper-logged workflows to automating human functions, the results have proven to be remarkable

Lance Elliott, VP of Global Operations and currently in training for his Six Sigma Black Belt, commented that "this is the time in the economy where Six Sigma Training and Implementation could really make a difference in a company's bottom line. If you can manage to squeeze a little bit of Six Sigma Training into your company's current budget, the benefits are worth every dime spent. The benefits are not only in increased profits and the bottom line --but also in a more motivated team-based environment for your employees and efficient service delivery for your customers."

Pro-Link GLOBAL, Inc has made a major commitment to using Lean and Six Sigma tools and methodology both to drive improvements in our own business and to deliver measurable results for customers.

"Our success and passion in Lean Six Sigma has become another defining competitive advantage for Pro-Link GLOBAL" confirmed Andrea Elliott, Senior Global Immigration Counsel.
